

I have Sirius and I don't believe it is any right of the NAB to stand up against the opportunity to hear local weather and traffic. Why don't you worry about something more important like Janet's nipple or Howard's mouth, Traffic and weather is a much needed resource, and who's to say that the folks that are listening are not from the local area, just travelers who happen to be listening to traffic for a far off city. Regular sucky radio losses nothing in this battle, but the NAB looks like a useless organization that should be denied funding from any source for wasting it on issues such as this. The FCC needs to learn to stop being the big bully as well and allow the american public to decide what they want to hear. If this continues we should rename the FCC the Taliban because you are going to extreme on issues that need to just be left alone.

Thanks
